NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that PG&E Corporation ("PG&E Corp.") and Pacific Gas and Electric Company (the "Utility"), as debtors and debtors in possession (collectively, "PG&E" or the "Debtors") in the above-captioned chapter 11 cases (the "Chapter 11 Cases"), hereby appeal, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 158(a)(1), from the Order on Applicability of Inverse Condemnation; Rule 54(b) Certification entered on December 3, 2019 [Docket No. 4949] (the "Order") and the related Memorandum Decision on Inverse Condemnation entered on November 27, 2019 [Docket No. 4895] (the "Memorandum"). Copies of the foregoing are attached hereto as Exhibit A and Exhibit B, respectively.

The Debtors intend to file a petition for a direct appeal pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 158(d) with the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit (the "Ninth Circuit"). As set forth in the Memorandum Regarding Certification for Direct Appeal to Court of Appeals [Docket No. 4953], the Certification for Direct Appeal to Court of Appeals [Docket No. 4954], the Amended Memorandum Regarding Certification for Direct Appeal to Court of Appeals [Docket No. 4965], and the Amended Certification for Direct Appeal to Court of Appeals [Docket No. 4967], all entered on December 3, 2019, this Court has certified a direct appeal of the Order to the Ninth Circuit. The Debtors submit that there are bases under 28 U.S.C. § 158(d) for direct certification to the Ninth Circuit. If permission to appeal is denied by the Ninth Circuit, then, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 158(c)(1), the Debtors elect to have the appeal heard by the United States District Court for the Northern District of California rather than by the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel for the Ninth Circuit.

The names of all parties to the Order and Memorandum other than the Debtors, and the names, addresses, and telephone numbers of their attorneys, are:

ORDER ON APPLICABILITY OF INVERSE CONDEMNATION; RULE 54(b) CERTIFICATION

I. INTRODUCTION

For the reasons stated in this court's Memorandum Decision on Inverse Condemnation filed on November 27, 2019 (Dkt. #4895), the doctrine of inverse condemnation applies to Debtors as a matter of law.

This order is issued pursuant to this court's Order Establishing Pre-Confirmation Briefing and Hearing Schedule for Certain Legal Issues (Dkt. #4540), Rule 54(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure ("FRCP") and Rules 7054, 9014 and 9021 of the Federal Rules of Bankruptcy Procedure.

II. BACKGROUND

The court's concurrent Memorandum Decision concludes that the doctrine of inverse condemnation applies to Debtors. The Memorandum Decision is based purely on the legal issue with no factual findings. Although there was no motion or request formally filed to obtain this order, this court's Order Establishing Pre-Confirmation Briefing and Hearing Schedule for Certain Legal Issues (Dkt. #4540) sets the stage for orders being deemed final and being certified for direct appeal if it appeared appropriate at the time of the decision. At the hearing on inverse condemnation, the court asked the parties whether they wished to pursue this issue on direct appeal to the Ninth Circuit. The parties answered in the affirmative.

III. FINAL JUDGMENT

FRCP 54(b) provides that, when more than one claim for relief is presented in an action, a court may direct entry of final judgment upon an express determination that there is no just reason for delay. As laid out by the United States Supreme Court, a court must first determine it is dealing with a final judgment. Curtiss-Wright Corporation v. General Electric Company, 446 U.S. 1, 7 (1980). The judgment must be "a decision upon a cognizable claim for relief" and must be final in the sense that "it is an ultimate disposition of an individual claim entered in the course of a multiple claims action." Id., quoting Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Mackey, 351 U.S. 427, 436 (1956). The court must then determine whether there is any just reason for delay. Curtiss-Wright, 446 U.S. at 8.

Here, this court is dealing with a final judgment. The issue of whether inverse condemnation applies to Debtors has been fully briefed and disposed of in the context of this proceeding. Nothing further needs to be adjudicated on this topic and no sub-issues remain. The issue of whether inverse condemnation will not be called into question by further proceedings in this case.

In addition, there is no just reason for delay. In making this determination, this court must take into account judicial administrative interest as well as equities, particularly to preserve federal policy against piecemeal appeals. See Curtiss-Wright, 446 U.S. at 8. Here, the issue of inverse condemnation in this case is separable from other issues of Debtors' liability in wildfires, as this issue pertains to just one theory of liability, one without regard to fault or negligence, only causation. An appellate court will not be faced with deciding this discrete issue more than once: this court has ruled on the issue of inverse condemnation, which shall not be disturbed unless an appellate court overturns it. See In Re Pacific Gas and Electric Company, 275 B.R. 1, 3 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2002) (where court's definitive ruling on discrete issue was a factor in favor of finding no just reason for delay).

Finally, equity favors certification. As laid out in the Memorandum Decision, this issue determines Debtors' liability for billions of dollars and shapes the outline of a Chapter 11 plan and this case in general. The California Supreme Court has not ruled on this issue directly and the parties to this case require answers before a legislative deadline of June 30, 2020. Due to the dearth of California Supreme Court authority on this issue of public importance and the weight of an impending legislative deadline, this court sees no just reason for delay.

MEMORANDUM DECISION ON INVERSE CONDEMNATION

I. INTRODUCTION

PG&E Corporation and Pacific Gas & Electric Company ("Debtors"), joined by the Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors and certain Shareholders of PG&E Corporation, challenge the application of the doctrine of inverse condemnation in connection with the 2015,

2017, and 2018 California wildfires (the "Wildfires"). The Official Committee of Tort Claimants, the Ad Hoc Group of Subrogation Claim Holders, and other parties aligned with them support the continued application of the doctrine. While Debtors take issue with a longstanding principle of strict no-fault liability applied to private utilities, they focus their primary attack on a 2017 change in policy by their regulator that they contend undermines their ability to spread liabilities from causes such as the Wildfires to their customers, the California rate payers. They stress repeatedly that the underlying policy of inverse condemnation as reflected in numerous cases is the distribution of losses throughout the community. 1

For the reasons explained below, the court concludes that the doctrine of inverse condemnation applies to Debtors in these Chapter 11² cases. The court also predicts that the California Supreme Court would reject the Debtors' pleas and reach the same conclusion.

II. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

Debtors filed these chapter 11 cases on January 29, 2019. Over the months since, the court has dealt with several scheduling matters, including proceedings for estimation of unliquidated claims arising from the Wildfires under § 502(c). A portion of the estimation will be handled in the San Francisco Superior Court in connection with the Tubbs Fire litigation. Another portion of the estimation will be handled in the District Court (Case No. 3:19-cv-05257-JD) dealing with the personal injury and wrongful death claims and property claims apart from those arising solely under inverse condemnation. By Order Establishing Pre-Confirmation Briefing and Hearing Schedule for Certain Legal Issues (Dkt. 4540), the court retained for itself a decision on the legal question of the applicability of inverse condemnation. The court and all parties expect the District Court to take that ruling into account in its February, 2020 scheduled estimation proceedings.

III. DISCUSSION

A. Inverse Condemnation Rooted in the California Constitution

The California Constitution provides that private property may be taken or damaged for a public use as long as just compensation is paid to the owner. Cal. Const. Art. 1, § 19.³ This section does not mention liable parties, cost recovery, or socialization of costs. In short, the California Constitution imposes strict liability in favor of the owner of property that has been taken or damaged through a public use or purpose and does not concern itself with the rights or liabilities of whom or what did the damage. It is a form of strict liability imposed on the party causing, or whose equipment caused, the damage. Inverse condemnation does not require any breach of a standard of care, a finding of negligence, foreseeability, or other similar factual finding. See Aetna Life & Casualty Co. v. City of Los Angeles, 170 Cal. App. 3d 865, 873 (1985). Instead, the operative inquiry is merely whether there was "actual physical injury to real property proximately caused by a public improvement as deliberately designed and constructed." *Id.*⁴ Debtors have admitted that their equipment was the cause of all the Wildfires except the Tubbs Fire; they have not admitted liability for any of them.

B. Inverse Condemnation Not Limited to Public Entities

Since at least 1894, Californian courts have not limited the application of inverse condemnation to public entities. The California Supreme Court in Eachus v. Los Angeles Consolidated Electric Railway Co. held that, because the plaintiff's property was damaged for "public use" by a privately-owned railroad company, he was entitled to just compensation pursuant to the doctrine of inverse condemnation under the former takings clause of the California Constitution. 103 Cal. 614, 621 (1894). Little consideration was given to the defendant's status as a private entity in that case. In 1911, the same court reached a similar

Section 19 provides, in part:

⁽a) Private property may be taken or damaged for a public use and only when just compensation, ascertained by a jury unless waived, has first been paid to, or into court for, the owner.

result in Gurnsey v. Northern California Power Co., 160 Cal. 699 (1911), when it decided that a land owner was entitled to compensation after a private power company misused an easement over his land. In both cases, the California Supreme Court recognized a property owner's right to be compensated for property damage caused by private entities that provided a public utility service. Although not dispositive, these cases shed light on the California Supreme Court's policy objectives and its treatment of inverse condemnation as a doctrine focused on public use.

More recent cases have continued to emphasize this as the doctrine's purpose. See Barham v. Southern California Edison Co., 74 Cal. App. 4th 744, 753 (1999) ("Barham") and Pacific Bell Telephone Co. v. Southern California Edison Co., 208 Cal. App. 4th 1400 (2012) ("Pac. Bell").

C. Limitation of Extent of Strict Liability under Inverse Condemnation

Inverse condemnation does not extend beyond property damage and is subject to some limitations, including a police power exception and some exceptions for flooding. See 8 Witkin Sum. Cal. Law Const Law § 1272. In some cases, damage to personal property may be recoverable. Id. The effect of the damage is also relevant. For example, real property damage can said to have been sustained "only when the market value of property is diminished by the public use." Eachus, 103 Cal. at 620. None of these limitations on inverse condemnation is relevant here.⁵

D. Cost Recovery

Central to Debtors' argument against applying inverse condemnation to them is the role played by the California Public Utilities Commission ("CPUC"). The CPUC regulates private utilities such as Debtors. See Cal. Const. Art. XII. The CPUC has broad regulatory authority, including the power to fix rates, establish and enforce rules, hold hearings, etc.⁶ To raise rates, private utilities must apply to the CPUC for approval of the rate increase.

27

Attorneys' fees and costs are recoverable by the parties successfully prosecuting inverse condemnation actions. See Cal. Civ. Pro. § 1036.

Cal. Pub. Util. Code §§ 701-853.

When fixing rates, the CPUC is bound by the Public Utilities Code. Section 451 of the Public Utilities Code provides, in relevant part:

"[a]ll charges demanded or received by any public utility, or by any two or more public utilities, for any product or commodity furnished or to be furnished or any service rendered or to be rendered shall be just and reasonable. Every unjust or unreasonable charge demanded or received for such product or commodity or service is unlawful." (Emphasis added).

As such, a private utility's ability to spread costs by increasing rates is governed by a reasonableness standard. Through case law, the CPUC has developed this standard to be a 'prudent manager' standard, by which a private utility's ability to raise rates to reimburse it for losses incurred through inverse condemnation is judged by whether the utility acted as a prudent manager. See e.g. Re S. California Edison Co., 24 CPUC 2d 476 (June 15, 1987) (stating the need for the utility to behave as a prudent manager); Decision Denying Application of San Diego Gas & Elec. Co. (U902E) for Authorization to Recover Costs Related to the 2007 S. California Wildfires Recorded in the Wildfire Expense Memorandum Account (Wema)., (the "SDG&E Decision"). Essentially, the CPUC evaluates a private utility's behavior to ensure that it has comported with best practices before it is able to pass on costs to the ratepayers.

Debtors assert that this regulatory process now severely prejudices them because the SDG&E Decision deemed inverse condemnation "not relevant" to rate setting, and thus Debtors are not guaranteed the ability to pass on their inverse condemnation losses by recovery from ratepayers. Id. at 20-21. Nothing has been submitted to show that Debtors have ever been denied cost recovery under this principle when they have been found prudent.

E. Controlling Law

The California Supreme Court has yet to rule whether inverse condemnation applies to a privately-owned utility. Two intermediate appellate court decisions are directly relevant. First, Barham held that inverse condemnation was applicable to a privately-owned utility, stating that the inverse condemnation portion of the California Constitution and case law "have as their principal focus the concept of public use, as opposed to the nature of the entity appropriating the property." 74 Cal. App. 4th at 753. There, the plaintiffs' home was damaged after the utility's power line broke in high Santa Ana winds, resulting in a fire. Id. at 748. The court explained that adopting the utility's position would require it to "differentiate between damage resulting from the operation of a utility based solely upon whether the utility is operated by a governmental entity or by a privately owned public utility." Id. The court found no significant differences between the two for purposes of inverse condemnation damages. Id. The issue, the court iterated, was whether the plaintiffs' property had been taken for public use. Id. at 754.

Second, Pac. Bell substantially relied on Barham to hold the same privately-owned utility liable for inverse condemnation. 208 Cal. App. 4th 1400 (2012). There the plaintiff sued a utility after a large bird came into contact with an energized power line and several telephone cables were subsequently damaged. Id. at 1403. The court clarified that the utility's statederived monopolistic or quasi-monopolistic authority distinguished the utility's action from cases against private parties that did not have monopolistic authority from the state. Id. at 1406. Both cases are unequivocal that inverse condemnation may apply to privately-owned utilities. Debtors do not appear to contest this interpretation of the holdings. Instead, they claim that the decisions were incorrectly decided then and "even more obviously wrong" in light of the SDG&E Decision.

Finally, although they are not intermediate court decisions, other courts have denied Debtors' attempts to revisit the applicability of inverse condemnation within the context of the Wildfires. In 2017, a trial court ruled that Debtors may be held liable for inverse condemnation in connection with the 2015 fire in Butte county. Butte Fire Cases, 2017 WL 9832289, at *1 (June 22, 2017). In 2018, in response to a renewed motion by Debtors after the SDG&E Decision, the same court again confirmed that Debtors are liable for inverse condemnation damages. See Rivkin Decl. Ex. B, Butte Fire Cases, No. JCCP 4853 (Cal. Super. Ct. Sacramento County May 1, 2018) (Dkt. 4775). That court scrutinized the SDG&E Decision and held that the CPUC's statement in the decision that inverse condemnation principles are "not relevant" to its review did not distinguish the case from Barham or Pac. Bell. Id. The court also stated that it was not persuaded that either Barham or Pac. Bell rested on the assumption that the utility there would be able to spread costs and found that the SDG&E Decision did not affect its inverse condemnation analysis. Id. Debtors petitioned the California Court of Appeal and California Supreme Court and both petitions were denied. See Joint Brief of Debtors and The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, etc., (Dkt. 4485), at 9.

In 2018, a trial court in San Francisco in the North Bay Fires proceeding overruled Debtors' demurrer, concluding that Debtors could not dismiss that case based on inapplicability of inverse condemnation. Harrison v PG&E Corp., 2018 WL 2447104 (May 21, 2018). Debtors again petitioned the California Court of Appeal and California Supreme Court and both petitions were denied. See Joint Brief of Debtors and The Official Committee of Unsecured Creditors, etc., (Dkt. 4485), at 8.

F. Role of Federal Court

In the absence of a controlling California Supreme Court decision, this court must predict how the California Supreme Court would decide the issue using intermediate appellate court decisions, statutes, decisions from other jurisdictions, and treatises and restatements as guidance. See Security Pac. Nat'l Bank v. Kirkland et al. (In re Kirkland), 915 F.2d 1236, 1239 (9th Cir. 1990). It must follow the state's intermediate appellate decisions. Id. (citations omitted). Further, as discussed by the United States Supreme Court in West v. American Telephone & Telegraph. Co., in directing how a federal court should act in the absence of a decision from the highest state court, an intermediate appellate state court decision is a "datum" for ascertaining state law. That decision is not to be disregarded by a federal court unless it is convinced by other persuasive data that the highest court of the state would decide otherwise. 311 U.S. 223, 237 (1940).8

24 25

27

West also emphasized that a state supreme court's refusal to review a lower court's decision fortifies the lower court's decision. Id. West was specific that the refusal was in the context of a phase of the same litigation that was being decided there, but this line of reasoning could be extended here, where the California Supreme Court has twice declined Debtors' petitions to review this issue, albeit in different cases.

27

Debtors maintain that West means that an appellate court's ruling is one datum, which means this court may look at other data that could override the appellate court decision and control the outcome. For this, Debtors cite American Tower Corp. v. City of San Diego, 763 F.3d 1035, 1047 (9th Cir. 2014), where the court decided to disregard an appellate court decision. In that case, the Ninth Circuit acknowledged a California Court of Appeal decision on point but determined that the court had incorrectly interpreted and applied the applicable statute. Id. at 1047-48. The court faulted the state court for its very obvious error—a powerful datum:

By reading out the qualifying phrase "[i]f the applicant chooses to provide public notice," the California Court of Appeal violated the "fundamental canon of statutory construction that a statute should not be construed so as to render any of its provisions mere surplusage." (citations omitted) (restating "the settled principle of statutory construction that we must give effect ... to every word of the statute"). We do not believe the California Supreme Court would do the same and therefore reject Mahon's interpretation of "public notice required by law.".

At oral argument, Debtors urged a similar analysis of Barham and Pac. Bell. Specifically, Debtors assert that, as the appellate court cited in American Tower misinterpreted a statute, the Barham and Pac. Bell courts misapplied case law when they cited to Gay Law Students Ass'n v. Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co., 24 Cal. 3d 458 (1979). The alleged misapplication stems from the fact that Gay Law Students dealt primarily with whether a private entity should be treated as public for the purposes of applying hiring and anti-discrimination laws.

As a preliminary matter, neither Barham nor Pac. Bell relied exclusively on Gay Law Students for their holdings. Unlike the misreading of a key statute, all that is at issue here is whether one case, partially relied upon, was correctly interpreted. Both Barham and Pac. Bell cited Gay Law Students for the proposition that a public utility's monopolistic authority derives directly from its exclusive franchise provided by the state. See Pac. Bell, 208 Cal. App. 4th at 1406; see also Barham, 74 Cal. App. 4th at 753 ("[w]ere we to adopt SCE's position, we would be required to differentiate between damage resulting from the operation of a utility based solely upon whether the utility is operated by a governmental entity or by a privately owned public utility."). This analysis helped the courts distinguish between private parties without state-granted monopolies and private parties with those monopolies. Pac. Bell, 208 Cal. App. 4th at 1406. The Barham and Pac. Bell courts did not deal with the anti-discrimination aspect of the Gay Law Students decision. They simply echoed the philosophical underpinnings of relevant case law—that a private utility can be tied to the state. See Gay Law Students, 24 Cal. 3d at 469 ("the breadth and depth of governmental regulation of a public utility's business practices inextricably ties the state to a public utility's conduct, both in the public's perception and in the utility's day-to-day activities.") (language also quoted by Pac. Bell). Because they did not misapply the case law or misread a statute, this court has no reason to discount those two decisions.

G. Markers to Guide Court's Decision

Debtors do not appear to contest seriously the legal landscape of inverse condemnation, which is soundly against them. Instead, they argue that the SDG&E Decision renders prior decisions incorrect and that the policy considerations of inverse condemnation demand a result in their favor. The SDG&E Decision was issued on November 30, 2017, approximately five years after Pac. Bell and eighteen years after Barham.

In 2015, San Diego Gas & Electric Company applied to the CPUC to recover costs incurred in settling damage claims arising from three wildfires that occurred in 2007. The CPUC denied this application in 2017, finding that the utility did not "reasonably manage and operate its facilities" prior to the 2007 fires. In other words, the CPUC found that the utility had failed the prudent manager standard applied to all private utilities seeking rate increases for reimbursement of inverse condemnation losses.

San Diego Gas & Electric Company also asked the CPUC to consider inverse condemnation, and argued that, because the utility would be held strictly liable for the costs it sought to be reimbursed, the CPUC should approve the costs regardless of whether the utility met the prudent manager standard. In response, the CPUC stated that inverse condemnation principles were not relevant to its reasonableness review under that standard. Debtors interpret this to mean that the CPUC will never pass on inverse condemnation costs to the ratepayers, and that this inability mandates a result in their favor.

First, Debtors seem to misread the SDG&E Decision regarding inverse condemnation. The case merely restates that the prudent manager standard operates without regard to inverse condemnation or traditional tort negligence. It does not state that inverse condemnation costs will never be passed on to ratepayers. In fact, the prudent manager standard virtually guarantees cost spreading if the utility acted prudently, which is a far more lenient standard than strict liability. Thus, Debtors are likely guaranteed cost spreading if they act prudently. In any case, as Debtors have yet to ask the CPUC for permission to raise rates as a result of the Wildfires, this amounts to speculation of how the CPUC will act. Debtors' argument does not offer a datum to predict a California Supreme Court decision here.

Second, there is nothing to show that Barham or Pac. Bell were decided on principles of cost spreading. Both cases focused primarily on the concept of public use. Therefore, any statement by the CPUC about its cost spreading analysis in the SDG&E Decision would not serve to undermine or call into question the holdings of those cases.

Finally, the remainder of Debtors' argument boils down to their contention that they should not be treated as public entities for these purposes. However, this court is not tasked to determine what the law should be and is merely tasked with interpreting what the law is and has been for one hundred twenty-five years. The California legislature has not taken up Debtors' cause to their satisfaction, and this court will not attempt to take its place.⁹

IV. CONCLUSION

What Debtors advocate here is to set aside a well-seasoned principle of strict liability. Failing that, they are seeking a solution, fire cost reimbursement, in search of a problem, CPUC's refusal or unwillingness to allow recovery by a blameless (prudent) investor-owned utility. As noted, they cite no instance when the CPUC denied inverse condemnation cost reimbursement to a prudent operator. And it is the role of the legislative branch, not the judicial

See Governor Newsom's Strike Force, Wildfires And Climate Change: California's Energy Future (Apr. 12, 2019) (Orsini Declaration, Ex. A) (Dkt. 4486). The report recommends a change to the inverse condemnation rules, but the legislature has yet to act. Notably, the California legislature did not change the law in its recently enacted Assembly Bill No. 1054.

branch, to fix problems in advance. As recently as this past July, the California legislature refused Debtors' request to restrict inverse condemnation. There is simply no reason to suggest that this court can expect the California Supreme Court to step up and do it. If the problem could be alleviated or eliminated by an amendment to the Public Utilities Code to relax or eliminate the prudent operator standard, that too is for the legislature not the court.

Debtors have not provided persuasive data to justify deviation from the intermediate appellate court cases discussed above. Nor have they shown how this court could predict that the California Supreme Court would either narrow the reach of inverse condemnation or impose on the CPUC a different standard for reimbursement of related costs. Thus, this court concludes that the doctrine of inverse condemnation is applicable to Debtors and the California Supreme Court would likewise leave it in place.

The court will issue an order consistent with this Memorandum Decision in the coming days and will include its determination that the order be deemed final for the purposes of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 54(b), made applicable by Federal Rule of Bankruptcy Procedure 7054. At the same time, it will certify this decision for direct appeal to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals.
